- 7 km

This walk takes you through the polders between Sassenheim and Warmond. A little part of the route takes you through meadows and further you walk through beautiful avenue trees through this green environment. Along the way you will pass several ancient castles and country estates.

MORE ABOUT WARMOND

In the 17th and 18th centuries, wealthy merchants build their summer residences in Sassenheim. Those beautiful buildings are almost all disappeared and there is not much left of the flower bulb industry from the 19th century in this village.

Warmond is beautifully situated on an old beach wall on the Kagerplassen. You will also find beautiful centuries-old houses and other

Huys te Warmont

Huys te Warmont estate is located on the edge of Warmond hidden in the green. The foundations of this house date from the 12th and 13th centuries. The house was destroyed during the Eighty Years' War, but later it was rebuilt.

MORE ABOUT TEYLINGEN

The municipality of Teylingen is located in the middle of the Randstad (with the villages of Sassenheim, Voorhout and Warmond).

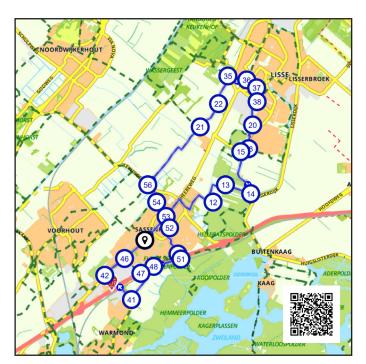

If you are looking for peace and quiet, this is the place! The rotating windmill blades and the silhouettes of the ancient villages rise above the horizon, but Teylingen is also a good choice for nature lovers!

3. Walking through Lisserpoel - 17 km

The Lisser Poelpolder is one of the oldest reclaimed land in the Netherlands; around 1624 the last drops of water were ground from the polder and the island of Rooversbroek became mainland. Initially, the job was done by two Mills. Later their task was taken over by the octagonal top porter, which stands at the lowest point of the polder.

The first farms were built in the 17th century. For centuries, the polder consisted of grassland, where cows and sheep were grazed. In the 20th century, a small portion oversprayed in bulb soil.
